Carol Wilton Lands Big Tuna

Fishing from her father's cruiser, Maui Maid II, Carol Wilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Wilton of Web-cowet road and Magnolia, fought and landed a 580-pound tuna, with rod and reel, after 40 minutes battle about 15 miles off Gloucester.

The fact that she was able in less than one hour, to land the tuna, one of the largest ever taken by a girl by rod and reel, in Ipswich Bay makes the feat of particular interest.

Mr. Wilton landed a somewhat smaller fish, weighing 490 lbs., later the same day, taken by rod and reel in about 45 minutes.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Matthew J. Flaherty, L.L. D., beloved Pastor of St. Agnes' Church

Beloved not only by the people of his parish but by all of Arlington, is the Right Reverend Monsignor Matthew J. Flaherty, L.L. D., pastor of St. Agnes' Church. Honored by Pope Pius XII in December, 1945, by elevation to the dignity of a Monsignor, he is still Father Flaherty to all of Arlington.

Born in South Boston, October 28, 1862, he attended Boston Latin School. He was interested in athletics and frequently ran to school, repeating his Latin verbs to himself as he ran. Graduating from the Latin School in 1883, he entered Boston College and received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1885. The priesthood calling, he became a novice at St. John's Seminary and was ordained in 1889. Later he earned his Master of Arts degree at Harvard.

Father Flaherty's first assignment was as a curate at St. Peter's Church, Cambridge, but his attainments and scholarship were quickly recognized and he received a call to the faculty of St. John's Ecclesiastical Seminary in Brighton. There he was a successful teacher, a warming influence and a sincere guide to the young seminarians. His erudition at this period was shown by the many articles he wrote for the Catholic Encyclopedia.

After this productive period of teaching and writing, he was appointed pastor of St. Bernard's Church in Concord. There he found time to be interested in community affairs, serving as school committee chairman and as a member of the library committee.

It was in 1914 that he came to St. Agnes'. Arlington then had a population of but about 14,000 and but one Catholic church. The parish has grown with the town and, under Father Flaherty's guidance has reached an outstanding position. The material growth of the parish, however, has but followed the spiritual.

Through the years of his pastorate Father Flaherty has been active in town affairs. His tolerance, his sense of humor, his forbearance and tact have meant much in the life of the town. Another of Arlington's foremost citizens said of him that he is "Arlington's first and most indispensable citizen". Another outstanding quality is his charity, both spiritual and material, which he extends to all.

Most notable of his characteristics is his love of children, so it is natural that the Parochial school should be first in his interest and that he should consider its growth his greatest achievement. It is now the foremost Parochial grammar and junior high school in the Archdiocese of Boston.

Most fitting conclusion to this sketch of him is the concluding paragraph of the testimonial printed in honor of his elevation to the rank of Monsignor:

"Priest of God, exalted pastor of his flock, lover of children, mentor and guide, faithful and good man, Father Flaherty stands forth as a shining example to all men and his name is writ large in the annals of the diocese of Boston and of the parish of St. Agnes. Ad Multos Annos."

Honor Guard
Functioning as honor guard to the Archbishop were eight parochial members of the Bishop Cheverus Assembly Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, under the direction of District Deputy Joseph C. Mahoney. They were District Deputy Edward C. Longan, Jr., John McMullin, Thomas O'Keefe, Joseph Rockett, William P. MacDonald, Charles Pier-non and John Lawlor.

Six men of the parish ushers' club attended the Archbishop at the mass: James J. Golden, Jr., head usher, William P. O'Connor, Cornelius Collins, William J. Toomey, Joseph P. Ochs and Michael A. Broderick.

The mass was beautifully sung by a special choir under the direction of Mrs. Christopher Nolan, organist. Its members, who will also sing the Holy Hour this evening and the other masses of the week are: Jacqueline Miller, Ruth Dennen, Mary Prior, Thomas Daley, Ray Helmick, Fred O'Brien, Marie Helmick, Larry Keefe, Edward O'Neil, Beatrice Brouillette, Therese Mallette, Dermott Fitzgerald, Daniel Quinn, Al Reppetto, Victor Guilbault, John Aiken, and Eleanor Reppetto.

Congratulations from Selectmen
Among the special guests were the Board of Selectmen, who accepted the invitation of the parish, Monsignor Matthew J. Flaherty, in the following congratulatory letter:

Dear Monsignor Flaherty:
It is with real pleasure that we accept your kind invitation to attend the Pontifical High Mass to be celebrated by the Most Reverend Richard J. Cushing, D.D., Archbishop of Boston, in Saint Agnes' Church, on Thursday, September 11, 1947, at 10 o'clock.

CONGRATULATIONS

The Advocate offers its heartiest congratulations to St. Agnes' parish on its seventy-fifth anniversary. Through the years—the parish and the Advocate are the same age—this paper has watched with interest the growth of the church from a mission of St. Peter's in Cambridge to its present size.

We have chronicled this growth through its various stages—the increase in membership which made necessary the division of the town into several parishes—St. James' at the Heights; St. Jerome's, a part of whose parish is in Belmont; and Immaculate Conception, which includes parts of Arlington, Cambridge and Somerville. We have noted in our news columns the various activities of the church, the special events of its societies, its church fairs and reunions.

As an important part of the town's history, we have described the establishment of the Parochial School, in 1892, when Father McMahy brought six Sisters of St. Joseph to Arlington to teach one hundred and thirty pupils, the purchase of the Rawson home in 1920 for a convent, the opening of the present beautiful school in 1925, the addition in 1938 of eight classrooms, made necessary by the increased enrollment, and the renovation and enlargement of the convent in 1939. Today, there are twenty-nine sisters and more than a thousand boys and girls attending the school, which takes them through the ninth grade.

Our congratulations go also to Father Flaherty, under whose thirty-three-year guidance much of this growth has taken place and who himself has been a power in the community, always directing the influence of his parishioners to the best interest of the town.

However, we realize that a leader's accomplishment depends on the quality of his followers as well as on the power of his leadership. The members of St. Agnes' parish have been enthusiastic in their efforts for church and school.

Congratulations and wishes for continued prosperity to our neighbor, with whom through the years our relations have been constantly cordial.

RULES FOR CHURCH GOING

The Calvary Church Messenger offers some rules for church-going which all of us might well observe—

1. Develop a habit, and you will learn to like regular attendance at worship.
2. Devote some time to getting yourself in the right mood for worship. Leave all your critical attitudes at home, lock them up, and give yourself a chance to derive some good from the service and the fellowship.
3. Be glad that the Church is here for you to attend. Be buoyant and happy that the faithful maintained it for you. Be glad that you have a chance to "Walk with God" on this blessed day: A day so different from the monotonous routine of the week, when you must apply yourself to the dull business of making a living. On Sunday you can escape from all that and dwell with God on the sunlit hill.

Survivor of Committee Expresses Appreciation
Editor Advocate:

The letter in your edition of August 5, written in tribute to the late Arthur Birch by William C. Drouet and the picture of Mr. Birch in a more recent paper was of special interest to this writer, a former resident of Arlington and the last survivor of the committee of seven under whose direction the Arlington High School was constructed.

That committee, Jacob Bitzer, Chairman, Arthur Birch, Carl N. Quimby, Jacob R. Estabrook, Clarence A. Moore, Nichols L. McKay and the writer carried out the suggestion of Mr. Birch and the main building was completed at a favorable time and reasonable cost, under the able direction of the architect, Mr. Howard Prescott.

Mr. Drouet, in his letter, has well described the long struggle and somewhat bitter contest over the selection of the site and the ridicule and scorn heaped upon Mr. Birch, when he first proposed the Schouler Court location. Even the town doctors took sides in the controversy, some of them insisting that the site would be a menace to the health of the pupils while others declared that their children would never attend the school if built on this location.

Mr. Drouet's letter did not mention the fact that the defeated minority petitioned for a referendum, that the polls were open for an afternoon ballot and that the vote of the original meeting was sustained.

Also, as we recall it, the vote in the Town Meeting was five more than the necessary two-thirds majority, instead of one.

Mr. Drouet, as stated in his letter, was one of the most vigorous opponents of the Schouler Court project. He was a ready debater and fluent speaker in town meeting and it was certainly "sporting" of him to admit that he was in the wrong. Not all opponents were as broad minded.

This writer, having served on a committee which urged the purchase of a part of the Winn Farm, Court location, was a compromise when it became evident that a compromise was necessary if a school was ever to be built. As the idea developed, however, he became an enthusiastic supporter of the plan.

Mr. Birch was a man of strong opinions but with an unflinching good nature and always ready to side by the wishes of the majority.

He gave very generously of his time and energy to the details of the construction. It is a pleasure to offer a personal tribute to him and also to the other members of the committee.

To have known and served in an humble capacity with this fine group of men was a privilege, a valuable experience and a cherished memory.

Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, include:
"How true it is that whatever is learned through material sense must be lost because such so-called knowledge is reversed by the spiritual facts of being in Science. That which material sense calls intangible, is found to be substance. What to material sense seems substance, becomes nothingness, as the sense-dream vanishes and reality appears" (p. 312).

How Much Should a Funeral Cost?
Many bereaved families have asked this question during our 30 years of service to the people of New England.

Funeral arrangements should be selected in keeping with the personality, individual desires and position in the community of the deceased and his family—but at a cost that will not burden those who must carry on.

Daniel F. O'Brien Funeral Services are within the means of all.

BRITAIN WILL COME THROUGH

Coal Production Off

Britain's situation becomes all the more grim with the falling off of production in the coal mines. These are now nationalized; there are about the same number of men "in the pits" as before the war; their wages are better and working conditions are slightly improved (just slightly—for in general they do not have machinery such as that used in American coal mines), and they have a five day week. But there are frequent "wildcat strikes" and work stoppages—condemned by the unions and the government alike. The latter is threatening to prosecute.

One reason for the low production seems to be in the food situation. As one Briton put it: "I used to have a lot of drive; up early in the morning, work hard all day. I know that my rations are not enough—for before the morning is over I'm all tired out. Although the miners get a larger ration, they, too, don't get enough. Coal mining is hard work—it takes food."

A sign outside the entrance to the Hotel Russell dining room reads: "Don't ask for bread unless you need it." But the hotels—and their dining rooms are occupied largely by travellers, British and foreign—serve meat with every meal.

HOUSING BAD

Housing is equally bad. Some dwellings have been erected but are unoccupied for months for lack of plaster and wall board—"fittings" as the British call them. "Prefabs" have sprung up all over England but these are merely temporary until better homes are available.

"I'm a bit worried," one Britisher told me. "The prefabs put up in 1917-1918, after the First World War, have been occupied ever since. I rather think these new ones will be, for a long time to come."

The big complaint against the Labor government is principally that they have tried to impose their socialistic program too soon. "It would have been better," you hear people say, "not to have attempted that now. We need to get back on our feet first. The program is a good one, in the long run, but now is not the time."

A number also express the fear that the change from the Churchill government to the Labor Party may have injured British relations with America. They are frankly worried that it has. There is an earnest desire for friendship cooperation—genuine friendship as well as political and economic—and a deep fear that something may happen to mar it.

That something might be what many people to whom I have talked consider the extravagance of the Labor government. For example: estates have been purchased for "regional offices," at several hundred thousand dollars each, when existing facilities used during the war might have been occupied until the present crisis is past.

FUTURE GLOOMY

The future for Britain—as seen by the average Britisher—is gloomy indeed. They—like we—are tired of slogans, tired of shortages, tired of "queuing up" in breadlines and meatlines and for trams and cinemas and whatnot. For escape they are jamming the theatres and movie houses night after night, travelling to Scotland and Ireland when they can.

They are a very old people. The sooted buildings which surround them have looked down upon hundreds of generations who have gone before. The symbols of Britain's mighty days are all about them—the political leaders, the great generals and admirals, writers and clergymen look down from heroic statues and in many an ancient painting. But these people look forward

Doris M. Hackett

Announces Re-opening of Dramatic Art SchoolOne seldom hears of a Dramatic School where no individual curriculum is taken, no prompt book is ever used, no pupil takes the leading role and students conduct the entire program. There is such a place here in Arlington.
It is called the Doris Hackett School of Dramatic Art. The students are an organized group which under the expert supervision, learns all the arts of the spoken word. Public speaking, corrective speech, elocution and dramatic expression. Since the students are mostly of school age, their lessons are scheduled for after school hours. It is the aim of this school to develop good taste in literature and entertainment, and pupils work only on the best in each field. Dramatic play or making believe is an old favorite with children. Dramatic expression is an essential value in any child's education. This does not mean that we are trying to teach all children to become actors. We want to allow the child to place himself in a new attitude toward life and experiences, to allow him to express himself in proper guidance. The confidence that comes from knowing that you are doing a thing in the correct manner is the foundation upon which all lessons are planned. We stress such fundamentals as courtesy, awareness of others and value of concentrated effort for the common good. This is most evident in their record of the past year of entertainments for churches, clubs, schools, lodges and veterans associations. A radio broadcast on Safety produced by the pupils of this school was recommended listening for all of the pupils of Arlington's schools by the school department.
Part of the training for leadership offered by this modern school includes effective speaking before a group, and one of the basic abilities prerequisite to good speaking is skill in manipulating the voice tones, correct training and proper enunciation.
Mrs. Doris Hackett's background of the theatre and stage have fitted her to know the needs of young people. She was born in Boston and at an early age attended the Dorothea Dix School of stage children. She played child parts at The Castle Square Theatre Stock Company and for two years played the role of Little Lord Fauntleroy throughout New England. Then, a memorable
European tour with the Boston
Children's Theatre Company, visiting Algiers, Cairo, Rome, The Holy Land and other Mediterranean countries. After being graduated from The College of the Spoken Word she began her career of teaching. Many of her past students have received awards and scholarships in college radio and dramatic contests.

To Visit Former Arlington Resident In Saskatchewan

Mr. and Mrs. Wathen B. Henderson of Academy street left last Tuesday for a trip to Regina and Govan, Saskatchewan. In Govan, they expect to visit with J. Herbert Edwards, who was formerly an Arlington resident and whose late wife, Miss Foohey, also came from Arlington.In the early days of this century Mr. Edwards, with his brother, Robert, was in the express business here, their place of business being on Broadway between the old Cooper Tavern and Franklin street, about where Helen's Bakery is located today.In 1906, the brothers sold out and moved to Saskatchewan.
Robert took up land near a lake about fifteen miles from Govan and named the beach there Arlington beach for the town he had just left.Herbert secured a large acreage and built a nice farm home just outside the corporate limits of Govan. He also maintained an insurance and real estate office in the town. For thirty years, he was secretary and treasurer of the Govan Agricultural Society and Fair Association and for thirty-two years served on the school board, for many years as chairman. He was mayor of Govan for nine years, elected several times as noble grand of the Odd Fellows, several times high priest of Govan Chapter Royal Arch Masons and also master of the Govan Lodge. Few men have been more honored by their neighbors than has Mr. Edwards.Mr. and Mrs. Henderson made the trip to Govan by Watertown,
N. Y.; Kingston and Toronto, Ontario; Port Huron, Silt and Ludington, Mich., where they ferried to Wisconsin, across Wisconsin to St. Paul, then to Winnipeg, Manitoba, and on to Regina and Govan. After leaving Govan, they plan to go to the Pacific Coast. On their return trip, via Walla Walla, Wash., and St.
Louis, they expect to go to Kentucky to visit Mr. Henderson's father, who was ninety-nine on September 4.

CURRY SCHOOL OF DANCING CELEBRATES SILVER ANNIVERSARY

The Curry School of Dancing is this season celebrating its 25th year as one of Arlington's leading schools. The school was founded by Mrs. Grace D. Curry as The Curry School of Ballroom Dancing and Social Etiquette. It was established after she had studied and trained with such well-known teachers of the day as Vernon and Irene Castle. Her first classes in Arlington Center were those entrusted to her by the late Miss Alice Homer when Miss Homer retired. Many Arlingtonians will remember with pleasure the training they received in Mr. Curry's classes.Mrs. Curry conducted these classes alone until 1938 when her son, Russell, returned from several years' training and teaching in New York City. Russell Curry then assumed the directorship of the school, introduced other types of dancing (tap, ballet, etc.) in the curriculum, and shortened the name of the school to its present title. Since then, in addition to assistants, three permanent teachers have been added to the faculty—Miss Dorothy Brackett, in 1940; Mr. Harry Raymond in 1944, and Miss Grace McKenna this season.The school has now grown to one of the largest schools of dance in Arlington, with classes in fourteen Massachusetts and New Hampshire towns, and a reputation extending far beyond New England.Joanne M. Babine and Miss Evelyn
M. Mahoney of Arlington.
Miss Ruth D. Shinnock of South Boston and Miss Agnes Burke of Medford. They wore aqua net lace and moire and carried pale yellow roses.Ralph C. Babine was best man.

In honor of their fiftieth wedding anniversary Monday, Mr. and Mrs. George Stolorow of 23 Mott street were entertained by their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Francis J. Bowes, of the same address, on Sunday. The celebration was in the form of a family reunion and dinner, given for them by their sons and daughters.

Beautiful gifts, cards and flowers were received by the honored couple. Their many guests, who came from all over New England, included their daughters, Mrs. Bowes and Mrs. Malcolm Tobey of Brighton; their sons, Frank Stolorow of Plainville, and Professor E. Howard Stolorow of Durham, N. H.; their grandchildren, and Mrs. May Lester of Somerville, and Walter Stolorow of Lawrence, who were attendants at their wedding in 1897.

Pidyon Habenn Celebration

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Gilman, 1500 Massachusetts avenue, an outstanding celebration took place on the 30th day after the birth of their son, Ronald Meryl Gilman, Sunday, September 7th, at 6:00 p. m. The occasion was the Pidyon Habenn, or the Redemption of their First Born Son, according to the laws of Moses and Israel.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Dr. Sidney Leeder of Cambridge. The child was presented by his mother to the Cohain, a descendant of the priests of Israel. The rabbi explained that rightfully the first-born of Israel should be dedicated to sanctity and devoted to the priesthood his entire life. However, the parents have the privilege to redeem their son with five silver dollars.

The Cohain did accept the monies and the child was returned to his parents. Thus, his obligations to sanctity were waived. All then stood in reverence to the Cohain who blessed the child. The rabbi made the benediction over the golden cup of wine and prayed for the happiness, health and longevity of the child.

Mr. Haley, night man at the Reed Motor Company, 362 Massachusetts avenue, reported to the police at four o'clock Tuesday morning that he had fired a shot at someone who was attempting to break into the rear of the building and that the man ran toward the railroad tracks. Scout cars responding to the call failed to catch him but discovered that a window at the rear of the Arlington Welding Company at the same address had been broken.

Powers Return from Trapp Family Camp

As has been their custom since its opening four years ago, Mrs. J. R. Powers and Miss Leona, of Harvard street, have spent the summer at the nationally famous Trapp Family Music Camp in Stowe, Vermont. Last year they were joined by James R. Powers on his return from Japan, and Mr. Powers was again at Camp this season.

This year proved the best ever for not only did they enjoy studying the choral works of masters from the 14th and 15th centuries to the present time, but the opportunity for fine chamber music was afforded Mr. Powers, when with members of the Trapp family and other guests, he played Bach's 2nd Brandenburg Concerto for solo violin, trumpet, recorders, viola da gamba and spinet; compositions by D. Waser and the Clarinet Trio by Mozart. In this work Werner Von Trapp played the clarinet, Mr. Powers the viola and Louis Pisciotta of New York, the piano.

Solo recitals were given on several evenings by members of the Family who demonstrated their skill on the recorder or block flute, accompanied on the spinet; by Rolland, Truit of Albany, N. Y., trumpet; by H. B. Haddock of Toronto, English Ballads and Folk Songs; Mr. Powers, violin; Rev. C. Russell Woolen, of Washington, piano and Miss Marylin Root, blind soprano, of Nashua, N. H., to mention only a few.

Rain did not interfere with the activities of the group of more than 100 but rather provided the ideal time to do the "Credo" Mass by Mozart with orchestral accompaniment made up of violins, viola, flute, viol da gamba, recorders and piano. Another treat was singing the Brahms "Love Waltzes" with duopianists.

On August 18th Mr. Powers was tendered a surprise party by thirty of the guests, the piece de resistance being a huge birthday cake made and beautifully decorated by Johanna Von Trapp, first soprano of the Singers, who supervises all the meals prepared at the camp.

These are but a few of the highlights of a splendid vacation and it was with reluctance that the Powers, after nearly six weeks, said "Goodbye" to friends old and new from points as far distant as Havana and San Francisco, and especially to Dr. Franz Waser, director of the Trapp Family Singers, under whose supervision all of this wonderful music was performed.

However, guests from nearby cities in New Hampshire, Connecticut and Massachusetts plan to meet once a month in Boston in anticipation of a Christmas reunion when the Family will be here in concert.

Ralph J. McEwen Promoted to Tech 5

Recently promoted to Technician Fifth Grade, Ralph J. McEwen, 19, is now serving with the famed "First Team" of the First Cavalry Division at Camp Drake in the vicinity of Tokyo, Japan. He has been in Japan since December of 1946.

Enlisting during October of 1946 in the regular army of the United States he was sworn in the service at Fort Banks, with Fort Dix, New Jersey as his induction station, he was then assigned to Fort Knox, Kentucky, where he mastered six weeks of armored infantry basic training.

During the major portion of his service overseas, T5 McEwen has been a second echelon motor mechanic. He successfully completed an eight-week course at the 27th Ordinance Automotive Maintenance School at Camp Drake. He plans to either be a mechanic or a machinist upon his return to civilian life.

DISABLED VETERANS FORGET-ME-NOT DAY

Saturday, September 20, 1947, is D. A. V. Forget-Me-Not Day. Workers representing Arlington Chapter, Disabled American Veterans, will be on the streets all day with forget-me-nots, blue flowers of remembrance.

In urging Arlington to donate generously, Leo Morris, Commander of the local D. A. V. chapter, said funds realized from the sale of forget-me-nots will be used by the chapter in its service and rehabilitation program for disabled veterans and their families.

"You can thank the disabled veteran for his sacrifices," the D. A. V. commander said, "Saturday, September 20, by purchasing a forget-me-not and helping to underwrite a vital service program for the disabled veterans of Arlington."

The D. A. V. maintains service officers who help, free of charge, these veterans in solving the many complicated problems that confront them and their families.

The Veterans Administration has recognized the value of the D. A. V. and has commended its work.

General Omar Bradley, the veteran's Administrator, has endorsed the work of the D. A. V. He said recently, "The D. A. V. has been doing a splendid and purposeful work."

President Truman has endorsed the annual Forget-Me-Not campaign, and said "This is a welcome opportunity to extend in a small measure our gratitude to those who became disabled in defending our nation."

First National Streamlined Store Opened at Heights This Morning

First to take advantage of the improved shopping conditions available at Arlington Heights is First National Stores who today opened their completely remodeled and renovated Super Market at 1301 Massachusetts avenue.

Immediately upon the completion of the widening and repaving of Massachusetts avenue at the Heights, First National Stores closed and moved back to that location, and began extensive alterations. The modern streamlined store opened its doors this morning, with an enthusiastic crowd of Heights shoppers in attendance.

Among the renovations undertaken has been an enlarging of the store itself, to provide a larger shopping area. The rear wall has been moved back. Entirely new shelving has been installed throughout the store. Finished in natural blonde wood, they are a new type—wider and lower shelves, allowing for a larger display and greater variety of groceries.

New check-out stands, which greatly speed up this process, have been installed. They are of the "push-pull" variety, which allow for speedier and more accurate checking. New fluorescent lighting has been provided for the entire store.

New Refrigerated Dairy Case. Among the new fixtures at First National is an entirely new self-service dairy case. This is a new unit, scientifically refrigerated to keep these perishable foods at the peak of their natural freshness. An enlarged self-service case for the display of "quick-frozen" foods is a new feature. This case keeps the frozen foods at correct temperature, at all times, yet allows the cabinet to be open, so that customers may see the entire display at one time, without reaching down into a dark chest. A new enlarged ice-cream case has been provided, and the beautiful long mirrored fruit and vegetable department has been enlarged to provide an increased selection of fresh native produce.

To create a larger shopping area within the store itself, new meat storage chests, scientifically refrigerated, were built on to the back of the present store, and the former storage area which occupied the rear of the building was eliminated entirely, so that the interior is now fully open.

Storage space now occupies the entire basement, and goods are moved to the upstairs level by a new conveyor belt which has just been installed.

The paving from the new street surface to the large automobile parking space beside the store has been completed, and the parking lot is now readily accessible.

This newest First National Store was completely restocked with fresh, new merchandise prior to its opening, and now boasts a more complete line of foodstuffs than ever before. Richard Heazle is grocery manager. Friends of Clarence Cochran, manager of the meat department, will be glad to know that he is recuperating rapidly from his recent automobile accident, and will be back at his post in the very near future.

IMPROVED HEIGHTS SECTION LOOMS AS IMPORTANT SHOPPING CENTER

Completed construction at the Heights brings that section into the limelight as a coming important shopping center. The widened pavement, giving room for light poles and wires have not yet come down. Work is going ahead in the installation of new light poles. When this is completed, the wires will be put underground in the conduits already prepared for them. This work will require no further excavation as the wires can be put through the conduits from the manholes.

The merchants are handicapped by the scarcity of quality goods, particularly food, and are harassed by fluctuating prices—with most of the changes upward—which make quantity buying difficult.

However, the patience which they have borne the hard summer is rewarded by the space and cleanliness presented by the road from Lowell street westward.

The First National Store and Albers Bakery have both been renovated and are opening their doors on bright interiors. The new Franklin Store, under the management of R. R. Hudson, has stocked merchandise which will be especially suited to the housewife at this season. Other
